

nominees would come to the Federal bench with an agenda to roll back civil rights and labor protections, many of which would affect women and all Americans.

We have held these values dear for many decades, and I cannot stand quiet and allow the Senate Republicans to abuse their power. Eliminating the filibuster would destroy the procedures that would protect democracy in this institution.

The American public must stand up and be heard.

HONORING HOSANNA CHURCH JUNIOR HIGH YOUTH GROUP FOR THEIR EFFORTS ON BEHALF OF IRAQI SCHOOL CHILDREN

(Mr. KLINE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. KLINE. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the efforts of some outstanding young Minnesotans.

What began as a routine service project for the Hosanna Church Junior High Youth Group has grown into a community-wide effort. The students, led by George Macaulay, set out to collect school supplies for Iraqi children. Once they had filled one box, however, they became inspired to do more. The students reached out to other groups within their church, then to other community groups. As of last week, the students had collected 20 boxes of school supplies and were still going strong.

I recall clearly the smiling faces of the Iraqi schoolchildren in my first congressional visit to Iraq 2 years ago. They were eager to learn, and their teachers and parents expressed gratitude for our assistance.

The Hosanna Youth Group is making a meaningful contribution to these children and demonstrating the commitment of U.S. citizens to the spread of knowledge and freedom.

I thank Mr. Macaulay, Alex, Jay, Patrick, Jack, Justin, Alexander, and Carter for all they have done. Their efforts are an inspiration to us all.

DEPLETED URANIUM MUNITIONS STUDY ACT OF 2005

(Mr. McDERMOTT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. McDERMOTT. Madam Speaker, today on behalf of 21 original Democratic co-sponsors, I am introducing the Depleted Uranium Munitions Study. The stakes could not be higher for U.S. soldiers and Iraqi civilians, and there is not a moment to lose, and I hope the Republican leadership will put it on the Suspension Calendar.

DU, as it is called, is a byproduct of the uranium enrichment process. It is toxic and has low-level radioactivity, and it is widely used by the United States military in Iraq.

There are countless stories of mysterious illnesses, higher rates of serious illnesses and even birth defects. We do not know what role, if any, DU plays in the medical tragedies in Iraq, but we must find out.

The Pentagon says there is no evidence that DU is harmful; yet the Pentagon also says soldiers should wear protective gear, including special clothing and a respirator, using DU. An Iraqi child has no protective gear. The Iraqi people have no respirators. If DU is so safe, why do American soldiers need to wear protective clothing in the first place?

We do not know if DU is safe or harmful; yet we have used 150 tons in the war so far.

Let the Pentagon prove that it is safe.

TOO LITTLE TOO LATE FOR NEWSWEEK RETRACTION

(Ms. FOXX asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. FOXX. Madam Speaker, I rise today to express my displeasure that Newsweek magazine published an inaccurate and irresponsible story that led to a deadly protest in Afghanistan.

The May 9 edition of Newsweek reported that U.S. interrogators at Guantanamo Bay used unreasonable and unacceptable methods to make Muslim detainees talk. These methods purportedly included the desecration of the Koran. Now Newsweek is apologizing for running the story, saying their "official government source" is unsure of the information he supplied to the magazine.

Madam Speaker, it is too little, too late for an apology and retraction.

While Newsweek has done the right thing by retracting their story, it cannot retract the irrefutable damage that has been done. Sixteen people died for no reason at all. Our brave men and women in uniform are now at greater risk. Furthermore, our country's image has been tarnished in the eyes of the Muslim community across the globe.

Media outlets must be sure to check their facts and get their story straight. We want and need a free press, but we must have a responsible press.

On balance, our media usually does an outstanding job of keeping the American people informed. I hope others will learn from this tragic mistake.

LAS VEGAS CENTENNIAL

(Ms. BERKLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. BERKLEY. Madam Speaker, the city of Las Vegas is celebrating its centennial this year. This past weekend marked the anniversary of the land auction that founded Las Vegas, and the city highlighted this momentous day with special events such as the return of the Helldorado Days Parade, baking and serving the world's largest birthday cake, and a reenactment of the land auction of 1905.

Las Vegas has grown from the western railroad stop of May 15, 1905 to the entertainment capital of the world that welcomed a record-setting 40 million tourists last year.

I remember as a girl with my family driving out west in search of the American Dream and finding it in Las Vegas, Nevada. Over the years, I have watched Las Vegas become the quintessential American city. Economic opportunity and the optimistic attitude of our citizens welcome thousands of new residents and millions of tourists every month.

I am proud to be a part of the Las Vegas community; and I wish my city, Las Vegas, a happy 100th anniversary. The best is yet to come.

IN SUPPORT OF JUSTICE PRISCILLA OWEN

(Mr. MARCHANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. MARCHANT. Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of Justice Priscilla Owen, Presidential nominee to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

Since her nomination in May of 2001, the Democrats have continuously threatened to use the filibuster to block a vote on her nomination, and she is unable to be confirmed. All judicial nominees deserve a fair up-or-down vote on the Senate floor. This judicial obstruction is unprecedented.

I personally know Justice Priscilla Owen. Her record on the Supreme Court of Texas is outstanding and she deserves the opportunity to serve on the U.S. Court of Appeals. Justice Owen has had broad bipartisan support, including the support of three former Democratic judges on the Supreme Court and a bipartisan group of 15 past Presidents of the State Bar of Texas.

If the Senate employs the constitutional option, it will not be changing the rules; it will simply be restoring the precedent and a 200-year tradition. Justice Owen deserves a fair up-or-down vote, as do all of President Bush's judicial nominees.

CHILD SUPPORT REINVESTMENT ACT OF 2005

(Ms. MATSUI asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. MATSUI. Madam Speaker, today I rise to introduce the Child Support Reinvestment Act of 2005. This much-needed bill will provide States, including my home State of California, with important penalty relief, allowing more money to flow where it should: to the children of our State awaiting their past-due child support payments.

California is in the process of developing the largest single statewide automated child support collection system
